USING VOLUNTEER JOBS FOR WORK EXPERIENCE

We hear it all the time. "I'm a teen looking for my first job, but employers all seem to want experience and I don't have any. What do I do?" We've got one word for you - volunteer.

Volunteering is the best way to get the experience you need to score a great teen job. You might be surprised at how easy it is to find a volunteer position that fits your interests. These five opportunities are both fun and will show potential employers that you're responsible. Not only will volunteering help you score a teen job, but it can actually help you get into college!

Are you interested in TV and movies? If you want to be the next Katie Couric or Quentin Tarantino, then consider volunteering at your local television. They're always looking for people to run cameras and help out with other behind-the-scenes work. You'll meet and learn all about video production from the experts, giving you a head start on your future career.

Are you interested in working with children? Camps, daycares and church groups offer great volunteer opportunities for teens who like to work with children. You'll need to be patient, caring and organized. Those of you thinking about a future career in teaching may want to work your way up to a volunteer position as a teacher or camp counselor. It's a great way to learn more about the ins and outs of the profession and will help you to see if you're a good fit.

Are you interested in history or science? Call up your local museum or aquarium. You may end up helping feed the sharks or end up conducting museum tours. You may also end up helping with paperwork and other administrative work. Check to find out if there are any requirements before applying, because some museums and aquariums require that you be a certain age or have a teacher's recommendation.

Are you interested in medicine? You can really make a difference in the lives of others by volunteering at a hospital or nursing home. Whether you help deliver food to the bedridden or play chess with bored patients, you'll be helping to improve the quality of someone's life.

PROPUESTA B

THE BODY SHOP

When Anita opened the first 'Body Shop' in 1976 her only object was to earn enough to feed her children. Today 'The Body Shop' is an international company rapidly growing all around the world. In the years since we began, says Anita, I have learned a lot. Much of what I have learnt will be found in this book. I believe that we, as a company, have something worth saying about how to run a successful business without giving up what we really believe in. It's not a normal business book, nor is it just about my life. The message is that to succeed in business you have to be different.

Business can be fun; a business can be run with love and it can do good. In business, as in life, Anita needs to enjoy herself, to have a feeling of family and to feel excited by the unexpected. She has always wanted the people who work for 'The Body Shop' to feel the same way. Now, this book sends these ideas of Anita out into the world and tries to make them public. She would like to think there are no limits to her 'family', no limits to what can be done. Anita finds that an exciting thought and she hopes you do, too.
